

Bondi Beach Volleyball Rules Volunteer Group

Guidelines

BBVRVG is founded to provide amateur players free of cost opportunities to improve their skills in line with international standards of beach volleyball as much as possible.

Each team must comprise of two players, one captain and one counsel. A captain and their counsel must first agree and then raise an objection if they believe a violation of FIVB rules has been observed. It is strongly recommended that they familiarise themselves with Official Beach Volleyball Rules Guide 2025-2028 available on BBVRVG website. In exceptional circumstances where a decision cannot be reached amicably, no team shall be awarded a point, and the point must be replayed.

The core value of our group is to encourage and help all members of BBVRVG to improve their game and their skillset in an environment that is friendly, inclusive and free of politics.

Our aim is to create a community of players with a strong focus on the game itself and adherence to its rules. To be able to promote fair play, we must address the need to implement internationally acceptable practices to avoid any form of negative emotions amongst players or give rise to unnecessary disagreements. All members must consult the organisers if they feel they are being unfairly treated by any member of the group based on their skill level, mental or physical abilities, cultural background, race, religion, sexual orientation etc. We have zero tolerance policy towards individual/s who pose a threat to the unity of our group.

All members are expected to help with organisation and preparation of BBVRVG events. Members should actively participate in transportation, setting up and packing up of the beach volleyball equipment and help organisers with the upkeep of the group's equipment.

Members are encouraged and must feel free to refer their friends and acquaintances as they wish to the group, all new participants and guest will be welcomed on conditions that they are able to play beach volleyball in line with international standards and FIVB guidelines.

Organisers have the sole right to admit or expel members from the group.

BBVRVG members are welcome to give feedback, suggestions, recommendations etc to the organiser for the betterment of our community.
